Cycle diagrams are used to identify how items or events are related to one another in a repeating flow.

The arrows in the diagram describe the conditions that influence a change from one state to another.

When filling out this template, consider how the change in the state of the cycle occurred.

Was it based on environmental conditions? How can other influences accelerate or slow the rate of change?

How might the introduction of something new impact or alter the cycle?

A. Opportunity

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Opportunity_\(rover\))

Guiding spirits somehow appear when you're least expecting them such as these 1967 "lessons learned" while enroute to the off-shore Vietnam War ::

My takeaway as a #USNavy Veteran is to honor all humanity's inner voices thanks to a spirit who shared WIZdom from the Korean War trenches serving wounded Marines ...
Bravo Zulu Hospital Corpsmen ::

Leadership traits result in empowering and inspiring others when the situation is seasoned with "attitude, aptitude and abilities" plus a dash of #UNODIR (Unless Otherwise Directed) . . .

I got my most memorable leadership lesson from a Master Chief Hospital Corpsman (HMMC) while I was an Ensign in transit via a USAF MAC flight to join USS Cimarron (AO-22) at Subic Bay, PI (in April, 1967)
